13	Conclusion	: Integrated Community Development Society (ICDS) approach to development of people centered and participatory. It focuses on the development of the people rather than the introduction of a particular technology or upon increasing production. Integrated Community Development Society (ICDS) will always try to facilitate a process of change in which the people are not merely the object of development efforts, but rather are themselves the prime movers-planners, implementers and evaluators of their own development. Integrated Community Development Society (ICDS) hardly believes that people are important and they have a tremendous capacity for change.
